When I started web design, I loved designing website layouts in Illustrator. As a result, I fell into the trap of designing everything in Illustrator - backgrounds, elements, text and borders. The sooner I started thinking about the web in a new way, the better. With 2019 and the new Photoshop on web, I've rethought my approach to designing for the web. Since I'm a huge fan of Adobe's art direction and branding, I thought it would be a great opportunity to create my own web branding. I was thinking that it would be easier to create good-looking logo designs in Photoshop before I ever start looking for the right stock images. There are so many free apps that help create and deliver a quality presentation. I use PowerPoint default

As far as the blur tool is concerned, the software has the ability to blur content across one or many stacks. The tool is a relatively easy way of creating effects and it's the most versatile one for any design project. Moreover, the software has an easy way of drawing shapes, curves, and paths and it's super-easy to import and edit them with its curves feature. The tool is built to allow users to deduct and drag shapes and build vector layers naturally. However, it comes with some drawbacks and the more advanced users will have to tweak some settings. Adobe Photoshop is a big library with almost all the tools and features required by the professionals, but it's also a platform with a steep learning curve. In light of this, Photoshop is built with functions that are meant to teach the user how to use the software, and it'll take a long time to become an expert in this software.
